Dedication

This book is dedicated to my fellow (in a general, non-sexist way) humorists.
I admire you more than you know.

Acknowledgements

I want to thank my good friend and business partner David Glickman who supported me from the start of this project although I'm sure he will deny any connection to the book if it is a big flop. He also gave me valuable feedback on what was funny and what was not. I did not use his feedback but I am grateful that he took the time to read the draft.

I also appreciate my humor writing recovery group members: Dale Irvin, Molly Cox, and Bill Stainton. Dale's help in changing the focus of the book was brilliant. Molly and Bill were cheerleaders from the start. But basically, none of them did any significant work on the book.

Dena Harris has been a faithful writing buddy since we met at the Erma Bombeck Writer's Workshop. We share a love for humor but not a love for cats. Of course, cats are funny, in an annoying kind of way. Dena gave me valuable advice on ellipses, commas, and when I might should have used the past pluperfect subjunctive tense. So, if there are grammatical errors in the book, I'd look to her for an explanation.

Almost lastly, I offer an acknowledgement that it is overlooked by most authors. I could not have written one sentence of this book had it not been for my Lenovo T61 laptop computer. Although it often suggested alternate spellings, it never failed to record exactly what I typed. I am deeply indebted and terribly sorry for the coffee spill on February 7, 2010, the day we lost ALT.

Finally, I thank my readers for having the faith or perhaps the blind ignorance to buy this book. It won't change your life but, if enough of you buy it, it could change mine. For that, I'm potentially grateful.

Introduction

This book began when I realized I was wasting good creative energy on daily random social media updates. Instead of putting them out for free, I decided to compile them in a book and make $12.95 on each copy sold.

And now, you too can create your very own random thoughts by using my deeply shallow thinking as inspiration. I suggest you follow these steps for getting the most out of this book:

1. Read one random thought every day.
2. Throughout the day, record your own thoughts in the space provided.
3. Chuckle at your cleverness.
4. Use your thoughts as social media updates, emails to friends, and voice-mail messages.
5. Pick the best thought for your tombstone. Consider having it carved in advance as family members do not always appreciate cleverness during times of grief.

6. Tell everyone how random thoughts dramatically changed your thinking.
7. Before you die, encourage all of your friends to buy a copy of this book.

It's not rocket science.

MY KNEECAP SEEMS TOO LOOSE

365 random thoughts to inspire deeply shallow thinking

It would be nice to have the ability to send an electric current through the phone when telemarketers call. Then I could say, "I'm shocked that you called me
during dinner."

Your Random Thoughts:

I can't figure out
why some Sudoku's
are harder than others.
They all use the same numbers.

Your Random Thoughts:

I'D LIKE TO SEE AN AUCTIONEER
WALK THE TALK.

Your Random Thoughts:

If I daydream
long enough, someone naked always appears.

Your Random Thoughts:

I just saw a photo of myself. I didn't look nearly as good as I do in the mirror.

Your Random Thoughts:

It's curious to me
that swallowing saliva is normal but swallowing spit is disgusting.

Your Random Thoughts:

When I'm talking to someone, I never know what to do with my hands. Once I start thinking about them,
they feel very big.

Your Random Thoughts:

One hole on my belt is too loose
but the next one is too tight. Clearly, my waist is not standard size.

Your Random Thoughts:

Ever since I bought a computer,
my handwriting has gotten progressively worse. Thank goodness my typing is still goid.

Your Random Thoughts:

I love USA Today
newspaper. The words are not real big and there aren't too many of them.

Your Random Thoughts:

Cats are arrogant.
Even though
I know I'm more talented, it still irritates me.

Your Random Thoughts:

Most people must look good to themselves. And that sure explains what they're wearing.

Your Random Thoughts:

If I say the word "weird"
over and over,
it sounds weird.

Your Random Thoughts:

There are certain clothes
I have never found a reason to wear. Bathrobes, cowboy hats, cardigan
sweaters, and thongs.
And I would never wear them at the same time.

Your Random Thoughts:

Thinking is the enemy of sleep. But when I try to stop thinking, so I can get to sleep, thinking is all I can think about.

Your Random Thoughts:

There are only eight musical notes.
With such limited
options, how can there be new music after all these years?

Your Random Thoughts:

When I try to listen to music and
do something else,
the two, baby, baby,
get mixed up.

Your Random Thoughts:

The words
"Las Vegas" sound
like "lost wages."
I don't think that's a coincidence.

I'm never drawn to the books
with a shirtless
man on the cover.

Your Random Thoughts:

Sometimes the words “paper or plastic” just pop into my head.

Your Random Thoughts:

Your Random Thoughts:

I wonder if there are grief support groups for people who lost their keys?

Your Random Thoughts:

The sound of a dentist drill is one of the few sounds that hurts.

Your Random Thoughts:

I'm thinking of a number between 1 and 100.
No, that's not it.

Your Random Thoughts:

Reading glasses
make it much easier
to see how old
I look wearing
reading glasses.

Your Random Thoughts:

I see men wearing both suspenders
and a belt.
Their pants must be very heavy.

believe that once we’re ready, we should be allowed to go.

Your Random Thoughts:

IT WOULD BE IRONIC
IF A BOXER
WORE BRIEFS.

Your Random Thoughts:

I just realized that a tractor trailer horn is a blast.
An SUV horn is a honk. A small sedan horn is a beep.
And a bike horn is a tinkle.
There appears to be a horn hierarchy.

Your Random Thoughts:

When your car runs, it's good. When your nose runs, it's bad.
Except for Kleenex®.

Isn't a self-help book really someone else's help?

Your Random Thoughts:

The collars of my
shirt are brown.
I don't understand how my neck got that dirty.

Your Random Thoughts:

The problem with the English language is that there were no internal controls when it was being developed. For instance, a drinking glass is a glass – unless it has a handle. Then, it's a cup.

Your Random Thoughts:

If my belly button continues to collect lint, I worry that the center of my shirts will eventually disappear.

Your Random Thoughts:

gets. That must be the second theory

The sign in the local coffee shop says, “Fresh Brewed Coffee.”
This alerts anyone who comes in looking for Stale Instant Coffee.

woofers came from.

Your Random Thoughts:

When I look at a raw oyster, I can't count as a new thought but I wrote it down anyway.

the memo.

Back Cover

“Aristotle. Kierkegaard. Culberson... I have no doubt the philosophy professors of the future will use Culberson's book as a classic text.”

—AJ Jacobs, Author of The Year of Living Biblically and The Know-It-All

“Ron Culberson has a twisted mind and that is one reason I like him. If his book of random thoughts doesn't enlighten you, at least it will amuse and entertain you. And that's saying something.”

—Mark Sanborn, leadership expert and bestselling author of The Fred Factor & You Don't Need a Title to be a Leader

“I don't count a piece of writing as funny unless it makes me spit out my coffee while reading it. Happily, I spewed coffee on every page of this book. Ron has the gift of showing the rest of us mere mortals how most everything in life is funny... you just have to know how to look at it.”

—Dena Harris, cat humorist and author, Who Moved My Mouse? A Self-Help Book for Cats (Who Don't Need Any Help)

This book does not include any complicated self-help theories or in-depth research on the quantitative benefits of thinking. It will not make you a better person, a better employee, or a better leader. It has absolutely no impact on the delivery of outstanding customer service. Your marriage will not improve, and your parenting skills will most likely be as bad as they are right now.

What you will get from this book is the priceless benefit of a random thought delivered to you for less than four cents a day. From that, who knows how much deeply shallow thinking may be in store for you. So stop reading the cover, buy the book, and get started. Your mind and the author's bank account will thank you.

Ronald P. (Ron) Culberson is a humorist, speaker, and writer. He lives in Nellysford, VA with his wife Wendy. For information visit www.RonCulberson.com
